

Tsoft has teamed up with Cetrus™ to offer our customers new on-demand versions of our applications. The Cetrus™ system enables unlimited workstation licensing of the product and only charges for the time the software is being used. Through Cetrus'™ metered usage technology, we can offer users our software applications for projects or short time periods without forcing the purchase of a traditional software license. Software applications are downloaded directly to a user's workstation, and Cetrus provides continuous license verification, allowing users to pay only for the time of software use using a pre-approved credit card.

Users can subsequently tag billing data to usage, and recover their software costs from their clients by using Cetrus E2P™ expense reimbursement technology, resulting in a zero net cost for software usage. Technical firms have the ability to approve users and track usage time through automated, real-time accounting processes.

Vendors are provided with instant real-time usage information. They have the ability to monitor usage patterns, allowing them not only to see who is using the software, but the capability to use this data to more effectively market to existing and potential users.
